

Singing and Songwriting

Friday | 1:00 PM - 1:50 PM | Via Zoom and/or in-person

Instructor: Nina Sclafani

Unlock your creativity and discover the joy of songwriting in this interactive class led by Nina Sclafani, a former NYS certified educator and Berklee College of Music alum.

This class will guide students through the foundations of songwriting, from basic song structure to understanding chord movements and how to match emotion with sound. Students will learn how to craft their own original music, explore their unique creative voices, and develop the confidence to perform their work. The class will culminate in a recording of a whole-class original song, providing a tangible, proud result of their work.

Designed to be welcoming and engaging, this class offers a supportive environment for learning and self-expression. Join instructor Nina Sclafani via online or in person at our studio in Smithtown, for an inspiring opportunity to build skills in music, performance, and creative thinking, all while developing a sense of accomplishment and confidence.
