Expressing our Opinions

with AMY COLVIN, J.D., M.S.

class description: This live Zoom course will increase students' knowledge in regard to living history as it evolves in the news every day. In the news category, students will discuss living legends as well as events happening around the world. In interactive discussions, the role of climate in our world will be examined in the different ways it is affecting the ecological cycles. Students will be able to express their thoughts through the analysis of songs and videos examining the reading of emotions and symbolism. A debate section of the class focuses on safe ways to express opinions (and maintain self-regulation) along with critical analysis of all sides of a topic to promote empathy.
