Sports act as a great equalizer because they attract fans from a broad spectrum of ages, races, gender and nationalities. Athletes and coaches have grown more comfortable using their leadership roles towards a positive community impact. Modern journalists need to also tell compelling, multimedia stories connected to modern issues in sports and our society as a whole.

This evolution is taking place alongside a move to advance digital coverage of sports. Enjoy this interactive class as we analyze the above and compare/ contrast past/present Sports coverage and influence around the world.
