BUE Stars: Acting & Improvisation Acting it Out...Taking the Drama out of Relationships

WEDNESDAYS | 4:00-4:50 PM | INSTRUCTOR: DAVID MACALUSO & CHRISTINA CAPEZZA
IN-PERSON & VIA ZOOM: SEPTEMBER-DECEMBER 2025

ONLY at BUE! Get ready to learn and enjoy acting the drama right out in our popular BUE Stars class! More and more research is evidencing the importance of a sense of community and joyful interconnectedness as factors that support our health and overall well-being. With this in mind, instructors David Macaluso and Christina Capezza are combining forces to teach this highly interactive class where students can expect to strengthen core interpersonal skills such as understanding and active listening via acting techniques such as Meisner repetition.

Students of this unique Acting class will have the opportunity to “act it out” via instructional Acting and Improv skits and scenarios. Using specific scenes and readings from beloved movies and plays that highlight communication challenges and misunderstandings such as Frozen and Wicked, this class will provide a platform for students to refine both their Acting and Relating techniques while embracing their individuality. BUE Stars class will also continue to study renowned actors across various genres, gaining insights into their techniques and approaches to support class acting exercises and student learning. This class is designed not just for aspiring performers, but for anyone seeking to build stronger relationships in their personal or professional lives.
